Our calls for competent help are greater than we can fill.

Need Not Be a Millionaire to Buy a Bond.

The time has come for every citizen and citizeness (pardon us) to declare themselves for or against the government and help supply the great need of finances. Many of us cannot buy a thousand-dollar bond, some even have to halt on a hundred or a fifty, but there are "baby" bonds in plenty and arrangements may be made with a bank to pay a dollar or little more in installments and in time possess a real bond. Even if there were no great necessity calling us to save, this opportunity should be grasped by every one who can spare a dollar. The investment is the surest and best on earth, the 4 per cent interest fair, and the habit of thrift will be a good one. Buy a bond; buy one today.

Beware of Fake Inspectors.

The light-fingered fraternity in their search for "easy money" have not failed to act upon the credulity of people who may believe that almost anything is likely to occur "on account of the war." The latest is to produce a bogus star or badge authorizing the grafters to examine the pantry of the housekeeper to inspect her preserve shelves, and to levy a tax of greater or smaller amount as the government's tax on what the prudent housewife has put up. One would think that almost anyone would know this was a fake, yet it has been worked, and we want to warn our people that the government has no concern with the stores of the private home, other than to thank the good housewife for preserving the fruits in their season. You are entitled to all you can (no pun) preserve, and the first person who asks to inspect them, other than friends, should be at once sent to the "cannery" presided over by Capt. Jim Madden at 64th St. and Wentworth Ave. Call the police should you receive such visitors, and should you have a shotgun handy unload a barrel of it patriotically in the scamp's carcass.

The decorators are finishing their work on the interior of the new Cunningham building, Normal Blvd. and Englewood Ave., and Mr. Cunningham will move his undertaking establishment to his excellent new quarters in a very short time, and be pleased to show his friends the handsomest and best-equipped funeral parlors in the land. The pretty chapel on the corner is being finished and is a gem in its line. No finer or more artistic or more appropriate for holding services could be imagined than this old English chapel. The barrenness of a simple room or makeshift chapel is an infliction on the family and friends of a deceased person, and people of every faith or of no faith appreciate the appropriateness of a real chapel in which to hold funeral services. Our readers are invited by Mr. Cunningham to inspect the new building, especially the chapel, at any time.

Tom Conway, upon request, read a very interesting letter from his son Tom, now on duty with a New York regiment of engineers, "somewhere in France."

The luncheons have become the social affairs of the week, and are attracting the attention of all the up-to-date people of the town. The association want it understood that all are welcome and a cordial invitation is extended to every resident of the town to come any Wednesday, and bring their friends.

JIM DALE.

By ELLIS PARKER BUTLER.

Young Jimmy Dale, across our street,
Is just a gawky lad,
He grew so fast, the doctors said,
His heart was mighty bad.

They wouldn't let him do much work,
Or any hearty play.
But, just the same, they drafted Jim,
And Jim has gone away.

Jim was a sort of great, big kid,
And fooling all the while;
So, when they ordered him to camp,
He went there with a smile.

Jim Dale is in the army now,
Lank legs, bum heart and all,
To fight like other drafted men
That got the country's call.

God, yes! Jim's heart may drop him dead
Or he may live to be
Shot all to pieces "over there"—
What odds to you or me?

By thunder! It's these odds to you:
If kids like Jim can go,
With smiles, to fight our wars for us,
We can put up the dough!

If we can buy a bond or two,
And don't, while Jim, poor cuss,
Goes smiling off to death or wounds—
Then hell's too good for us!

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 28

EZRA RETURNING FROM BABYLON.

LESSON TEXT—Ezra 8:15-36.
GOLDEN TEXT—The hand of our God is upon all them for good that seek him.—Ezra 8:22.

An interval of some fifty years intervenes between the dedication of the temple and the journey of Ezra to Palestine. Some stirring events in the world occurred in this time which greatly helped the Jews. It was during this time that the episode of Esther's being made queen and the elevation of Mordecai occurred, which favorably disposed the Persian government toward the Jews. The time was auspicious for Ezra to make his request unto Artaxerxes. The supreme aim of Ezra was the restoration of the true worship of Jehovah, for it is evident that the work done by Zerubbabel had largely failed of its aim. In order that Ezra might be an efficient instrument in the hands of God for the accomplishment of this purpose, he "prepared his heart to seek the law of the Lord and to do it, and to teach in Israel the statutes and judgments" (7:10). There are three stages in the experience of every true teacher. First: to seek the law of the Lord. Second: to do it. Third: to teach it to others. The last is impossible without the first two.

The royal commission granted to Ezra embraced—

(1) The return of all whose free will prompted them to do so (7:13).

(2) Ezra's being given magisterial authority over the district "beyond the river" (7:25, 26).

(3) Exemption from taxation to the Levites (7:24).

(4) Conveyance of offerings from the king and his officers (7:15, 19).

I. Register of Ezra's Companions (1-14). Doubtless this is a representative list of those who joined Ezra. There is clear implication that the twelve tribes are represented among those who returned. (See 2:70; 6:16, 17.)

II. Ezra Sends to Iddo for Ministers for the Temple Service (vv. 15-20). Before the journey to Palestine was actually begun, Ezra gathered about him his companions who were to accompany him, to see whether they were representative. In this review he discovered that none of the sons of Levi were in the company. So he sent chief men to Iddo, who was doubtless the president of the school of the Levites, for ministers for God's house. In response to this appeal, 38 Levites and 220 Nethinims joined him.

III. Ezra Seeking the Guidance of the Lord (vv. 21-23). The journey was full of deadly perils. It lay through a region invested with Bedouin marauders. Ezra, fully conscious of these, and ashamed to ask help of the king, proclaimed a fast, in which in deep humiliation they sought the guidance and protection of God. This is a fine illustration of the independence, and yet dependence, of the men who fully trust God. His chief concern was for the honor of God's name. He had so confidently and repeatedly spoken to the king of the divine sufficiency that now to have asked for a guard of soldiers would cause him to blush with shame. In this critical hour they committed themselves to the care of Him who keepeth Israel. We should begin every journey, every undertaking, every new piece of work, every new day by seeking the direction of God. No friendship or business interest ever reaches its best unless God's hand be in it and upon it. We should not go anywhere, engage in any business or have any friendship upon which we may not ask God's blessing and aid. They sought this for themselves, for their children, and all their substance. They knew that as soon as they made God first his blessing would be upon them, and as soon as they forsook him his power would be withdrawn and his wrath would be upon them. God did not disappoint them, for they safely reached their destination. He never disappoints.

IV. The Treasure Committed to Twelve Priests (vv. 24-30). Combined with their faith in God, we find practical business sense. Honest, trustworthy, good men were selected (v. 28). To such only should be intrusted the Lord's money—gifts offered freely to the Lord by his people. Again, the money was carefully counted and weighed, and the amount set down. The men were held accountable at the end of the journey for everything intrusted to them. Men ought to be held to strict account for everything intrusted to them, to the very last cent. The men to whom this was intrusted were holy; the gifts were God's; they did not belong to any man; they were charged with the obligation to deliver these gifts before the chief priests and Levites at Jerusalem.

V. The Safe Arrival at Jerusalem (vv. 31-36). The journey lasted four months. They carried with them millions of dollars' worth of treasure, through a region infested with marauding Bedouins, yet God delivered them from their hands. At the end of the journey they testified to the faithfulness of God in bringing them safely on (v. 31). The safe arrival at the end of each day's journey is due to the good hand of our God upon us. After resting three days, the treasure was brought into the temple and burnt offerings were made to the Lord. After this, the decree of the Persian king was delivered to the governors who should aid in furthering the people and the House of God.

A Great Reward.

If we love God the reward promised us is nothing less than the sight of God himself face to face, an abiding vision, an ecstasy of vast intelligence forevermore. Think how such a reward transcends all the expectations, all the possibilities even, of our nature!—Sacred Heart Review.

The Thing We Need.

The religious frame of spirit that we most need to gain is to feel that God is near to us; that all things are filled with his presence; that the universe around us is a living expression of his goodness; that all which we enjoy is not so much benevolence, sending down its gifts from afar to us, as it is the energy of his love working within us.—Orville Dewey.

The true conquerors are often those whom the world calls the vanquished. —Max Muller.

Dr. White to Speak on Russia Sunday Evening.

Dr. Rufus A. White will deliver his illustrated lecture at the People's Liberal church Sunday evening on "Russia—An Adventure in Democracy." This undoubtedly will be one of the best of Doctor White's wonderful lectures, as he has traveled extensively in Russia and possesses the happy faculty of seeing about all there is to a country and a people he associates with. His views are always worth while, as his extensive travels have made him at home in many lands, where he has studied the people, their manners, their life and their governments. Hence his comparisons of governments and the fitness of the people for the various forms of government will necessarily be of weight and well worth hearing. At the morning service at this church, Doctor White will speak on "The German Reformation."

HARVARD PHOTO PLAY HOUSE

Extra! Extra! First time on the South side. Two days, Friday and Saturday, October 26-27, matinee and night. The irrepressible, ever popular Douglas Fairbanks, as an Eastern tenderfoot, in his new, humorous, exciting, death-defying play, "The Man From Painted Post." A typical Fairbanks play full of the "pep" and the good-natured rough-stuff, the thrills and the smiles. The scenes of this great play are laid in beautiful Wyoming. Bucking broncbos, crack riding, trick roping and bulldogging steers are among the interesting features offered by "Doug" Fairbanks in this comedy drama of the true West. Come early—attend the matinee—don't miss this, Fairbanks' best play.

Sunday, October 28, continuous, 2 to 11 p. m. Everybody's favorite, Harold Lockwood, in a play that will make him more popular than ever, "Paradise Garden." The story of a man who has never seen a girl. Then one day there wanders across his vision a good girl—the rough sort. But then comes a young Satan in petticoats, and she teaches the hitherto spotless youth the knowledge of good and evil. The theme presents great possibilities, of which full advantage is taken in the picture.

Lester Cuneo, who plays the leading part opposite Harold Lockwood, will appear in person Sunday matinee and evening.

Monday, October 29, matinee and night. Charles Frohman presents the celebrated Broadway star, Ann Murdock, in her most sensational dramatic stage success, "Outcast," a picturization of Hubert Henry Davies' noted and sensational play, same as played for one year in New York and six months in Chicago. See a love drama that ignores convention but touches the heart. A woman's fight to free herself from the Slough of Despond. A man's prejudices conquered by a woman's wit and wisdom. A soul-stirring love drama involving two women and a man. Adults only. Also latest weekly, first run, and a good comedy.

W. D. Griffith, the Master Genius and Producer of "Intolerance" at the "Harvard Beautiful," Friday and Saturday, November 2nd and 3rd.

Tuesday, October 30, matinee and night. Metro Pictures offers wonderful Emily Stevens at the height of her tremendous dramatic power, which she displays in the E. Phillips Oppenheim master play, "A Sleeping Memory," a seven-act special production de luxe. Romance and mystery are strong in this truly wonderful play. It is the sort of play that makes an unfailing appeal to men, women and children. Also Burton Holmes travel picture and a scream comedy.

Special—two days—Wednesday and Thursday, October 31 and November 1. Paramount Pictures presents dainty Marguerite Clark in Mary Roberts Rinehart's famous "Sub-Deb" story, "Bab's Diary," a delicious story in six parts. She wanted to wear low-necked dresses, but the family thought she was too young. She was a "Sub-Deb." You've had a "make-believe" sweetheart! Tell the truth, now! You have, haven't you? Just to fool your friends, that's all! So you can't blame dainty "Bab" for getting one, too, can you? You'll smile at her, chuckle at her, roar at her, in this story by Mary Roberts Rinehart that created so much national comment when printed in the Saturday Evening Post. You'll enjoy Marguerite Clark better than in any other picture. Also other pictures.

Extra special! Attraction extraordinary! Two days only, two—Friday and Saturday, November 2 and 3. Exclusive advance showing in this vicinity, with special eight-piece orchestra. D. W. Griffiths' colossal $2,000,000 spectacle, "Intolerance." Exactly as presented at the Colonial theater for 24 weeks. The most remarkable production ever conceived by man. The most daring innovation in the history of drama. It is the life, the history and the romance of four civilizations. Here you see ancient Babylon and the famous feast of Belshazzar—towering walls and hanging gardens—dances of the Orient in their luxurious environments—Judea and the Holy Land in its beautiful simplicity at the dawn of the Christian era—Medieval Paris and the court of Charles IX. with events leading up to the massacre of those stirring days—and then a modern story of love and adventure linked symbolically to these past ages in the most thrilling dramatic narrative ever conceived. Come to the greatest adventure ever known and enjoy the wonders of this magnificent production. Four shows daily: Matinee, first show, 2 p. m.; matinee, second show, 4:30 p. m.; adults 25c, children 15c. Night: first show 7 p. m.; second show 9:30 p. m. In order to enjoy this marvelous play we advise our patrons to come according to the schedule time, as we will have and sell tickets separately. Special children's matinee, Saturday morning, 10 o'clock; seats 15 cents. Don't miss this opportunity of seeing this astounding creation.

NATIONAL THEATRE

A cartoon musical comedy that is a distinct departure from any cartoon play that you have ever seen in that it combines all the things that go to make successful musical comedies, including spectacular and gorgeous scenic effects, novel electrical effects, a fashion parade of real chorus beauties dressed in creations that are right up to the minute, catchy music, fantastic dancing, and last but by no means least, real, hilarious fun, is "Katzenjammer Kids," the latest of the comic supplement characters to find their way to the stage.

The Katzenjammer Kids, Hans and Fritz, Ma Katzenjammer, Der Captain, Der Professor, and all the other characters that made the cartoons famous, appear in the show. Heretofore all the cartoon musical comedies were produced with only a few of the characters from the funny pages placed on the stage, but in "Katzenjammer Kids" all the comical cutups from the cartoons appear. These characters are surrounded by a big beauty chorus and with catchy songs and novel dancing the result is a real evening's entertainment.

One of the features of "Katzenjammer Kids" is the beauty of the chorus and the costumes. The beautiful girls, and those of the "Katzenjammer Kids" chorus are the pick of Broadway's beauty mart, are gowned in most fashionable creations which will prove a real treat for the ladies.

"Katzenjammer Kids," which is the work of David M. Wolff, who wrote the book and lyrics, and Donald H. Bestor, who wrote the music, was staged by Virgil M. Bennett, a master of stage craft. Mr. Bennett is responsible for the beauty and gorgeousness of the stage pictures as well as the excellent ensemble numbers of the chorus.

The first engagement of "Katzenjammer Kids" in this city will take place at the National for one week, commencing Sunday matinee, October 28, under the direction of Guzzolo, Gatts and Clifford.

At the National Theatre All Next Week.

LINDEN PHOTODROME

Today, Friday, Oct. 26—Don't miss this one as the management makes a special effort to advertise "The Whip," as one of the greatest pictures we have ever shown. The story deals with the intrigue which is wound around a famous race horse bearing the name of "The Whip." Upon the question of "The Whip" winning a great race depends the fortunes of several people. A love affair also hangs on the result of the race. It is modern. It is about people of today. It has a thrill in every reel. It is clean. All men, women and children with red blood in their veins should see it. It is cast with movie favorites that you all know. It has six stars—not one. All in all it has everything necessary to please, to thrill, to educate the young and old. It is the supreme offering of filmdom. Attend the matinee Thursday and Friday, October 25-26.

Saturday, Oct. 27—"Her Conscience Pictured." The acts of a trifling, deceitful girl shown on the screen as waiting to be married. She ponders on the past and, well— See Gladys Brockwell in "Conscience," a soul stirring play enacted by a great cast. The Animated Weekly and a good Nestor comedy.

Sunday, Oct. 28 Alma Rubens stars in a western drama, "The Firefly of Tough Luck." The "Firefly," a broadway entertainer, shows that a good woman cannot be put down. It's a thriller from start to finish. Also a cracking good comedy, "Lost a Cook." Some show Sunday.

Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 29-30—Norma Talmadge in "The Moth." Miss Talmadge's place in the ranks of stars was made secure through "Panthea;" with "Poppy," her fame and popularity become international. "The Moth" will raise her to new heights. It is a superb picture telling a strong and dramatic story, a girl—a tragic marriage—the pace that kills, and the way out: "The Moth" is big.

In "The Moth" at the popular Linden Monday and Tuesday, October 29-30.

AUTOMOBILISTS, ATTENTION!

Every motorist in the United States is expected to paste on the wind shield of his machine one of the Liberty loan posters provided by the government. The publicity department of the Liberty Loan executive committee of the Seventh Federal Reserve district has sent out such a poster to every registered owner of an automobile in this district.

There is no excuse for any automobile to appear in public without one of these posters pasted on the wind shield.

Do your share, Mr. Motorist, in aiding the government to float this bond issue and win the war.

Shall we buy Liberty bonds, or pay indemnities to the Kaiser? We've got to do one or the other. Which will you choose?

ARMY CALLS FOR YOU

Have you a relative in the army or navy?

Every one of the thousands of men called to the defense of the United States in this war against Germany must be taken care of by the government—furnished with suitable clothing, arms, etc.

What have you done to help furnish equipment for your relative? It is your money that must do it, for the government is dependent upon the people for its support. What is not freely loaned at good rates of interest must be secured by taxation, with no return to you.

Here are some of the things your money can do for the men in the army and navy:

A $50 bond will supply four months' sustenance in the field for one man.

A $100 bond will supply 200 pounds of smokeless powder.

A $200 bond will supply complete uniform and outfit for four navy men.

A $500 bond will supply 180 gas masks.

A $1,000 bond will supply gasoline enough to drive a submarine 2,000 miles.

A $2,000 bond will supply 520 13-pound shells to destroy submarines.

Will you buy a bond of the second Liberty loan and help win the war?

EMPRESS THEATRE

The daily matinees at the Empress theatre attract the largest crowds that attend any playhouse in the South side. Manager Harry Mitchell rather prides himself on the excellent programs he presents and that he is pleasing the people is attested by their patronage.

The very top liners in vaudeville are surely to be seen as early as any house in the city, at the Empress, and the changes in program are such as to keep something new and novel always before the audiences. All that is approved by the best booking agencies as the proper caper are booked for the Empress and at the earliest dates, so that to keep thoroughly abreast of the times, it is necessary to get the Empress habit and go to the Empress at least several times a week.

The cold weather coming on when it is more pleasant indoors than out, brings out to the best houses the faces of those who have been absent during the summer, and to those who have not been patrons of the Empress, we wish to invite them to give the Empress a trial visit any afternoon or evening, being assured that a visit means a regular patron. Another feature of the management is to solicit suggestions from patrons that may in any way improve the programs or service of the house. The Empress is the people's playhouse. Be one of the people.

MARLOWE HIPPODROME

"Doc" White is doing things at the Marlowe Hippodrome and a glance over the program of this week will convince one that he has struck the vein of amusement that Englewood people like. The excellent houses at the Marlowe each night is a tribute alike to the excellent talent engaged and to the versatile "Doc's" ability in picking them. We have all seen "movies" that reminded one of a funeral, and others alleged to be funny that were simply agonizing in their preposterousness and gaucherie. This is the kind you won't see at the Marlowe and the vaudeville acts are always the newest and best. With a big string of the best houses the management can afford to book attractions that smaller houses that play a lone hand, can't afford to put on. It is the policy of this popular house to learn of all the newest on the vaudeville stage and then book it. The price is always an after consideration and the result is they really have what they advertise—"first-class vaudeville"—at every performance.

A feature of the Marlowe is the cleanliness of the program, no questionable acts are allowed, no profanity or smut is allowed to go over the lights and women and children are as carefully considered as in their own homes or churches. Amusement, clean and fresh, is their specialty and the best humor does not need smut to make it good.

The patrons of the Marlowe appreciate the efforts of Mr. White and are showing it by their patronage, and an empty seat is as big a curiosity as a white blackbird, while the big play house will comfortably seat more people than any house in this part of the city. Moral: Become a Marlowe patron, try it once and you will be sure to become a regular.

Aptly Put.

"Yes," said Mrs. Twickembury, "we have installed recrudescent lights in every room in the house."—Christian Register.

The Best Cheer.

"There is no cheer better than the cheer that comes from giving good cheer to others."—Henry T. Cope.

ENGLEWOOD THEATRE

WAINSTOCK'S MILITARY MAIDS COMPANY.

The ideas of burlesque patrons have advanced so rapidly the past two seasons, that a manager can no longer expect to command attention with a mediocre attraction of the brand that has been handed out by some of the burlesque companies. The people who weekly patronize a burlesque theatre now expect the same production, as to scenery and costumes that they would in the legitimate houses. Realizing this state of affairs Wainstock, who is looked upon as a burlesque showman of the first magnitude, has enlisted the services of the ablest people obtainable to give a performance of the kind that is demanded by the people who pay to see burlesque. To begin with he has engaged such well-known stars as George A. Clark, that versatile comedian; Leona Fox, Charles Fagan, Caroline Warner, Myrtle Franks, Ben Holmes, James Hilbert and Harry Van. The scenery and costumes together with electrical effects have never before been attempted in a burlesque house and he deserves credit for the successful manner in which he has entered to the desire of the public. The company is a very good one, and the musical numbers are gems, and of that jingling kind that sets an audience whistling as they leave the theatre. Don't forget the beauty chorus of 20 sparkling pretty maidens, all under twenty.

Mr. Clark was the funny tramp who made so many friends here last season with the "Hello Paris" company and as the management has received numerous inquiries from Englewood admirers as to when Mr. Clark would return, it looks as though next week should be a record-breaker.

The Cleanly Eel.

Fresh water eels are very clean feeders; they are sometimes seen cropping the leaves of watercresses and other aquatic plants as they float about in the water; but they are immense devourers of spawn of all kinds of fish. There are certain well-known spawning grounds in the Norfolk Broads where the roach and bream collect in vast numbers to spawn in the spring. To those grounds the eels follow in hundreds.

The "Coon-Cats" of Maine.

The so-called "coon-cat," which is common all over Maine, is held by natives to be a cross between the cat and the raccoon. Biologists ridicule this belief; nevertheless many half wild cats in Maine have the typical raccoon tail with short forelegs, pointed snout and long hair.

HELP THE NATION WIN

The United States has never yet known defeat or failure. Shall it be overwhelmed now for lack of money?

Every loyal citizen of this great democratic republic will answer with a thundering "No!"

But it takes money and more money to win victory, for we must send our soldiers abroad to fight this war in Europe rather than our own country. The harder we strike the sooner the war will be over, and the greater the response of the people to the government's call for funds the harder we can strike.

War means sacrifice to us all; to some the supreme sacrifice of battle; to others the honor of giving our undivided loyalty to the nation and support to our men in the trenches.

If you can't go to the front, give your financial support; buy Liberty bonds.

This is no hardship, no real sacrifice, for these bonds are the safest investment in the world, backed by the combined wealth of every man, woman and child in the country—110,000,000 of them—and the nation is no wealthier than its people.

Now is the time for all good Americans to buy Liberty bonds.

OUR WANT COLUMN

Is the best medium of reaching people in the South part of the city, and our rate of one cent a word is exceptionally low, but we must insist that all such ads be paid for in advance and either brought to the office or sent by mail as we cannot afford to make bills and send collectors for same. This applies to everyone whether you are a friend to the editor or office boy, and we will positively make no exceptions, so please do not kick if your request to violate this rule is refused.

It Carries Its Own Evidence.

A religion which takes possession of the convictions of mankind carries with it its own evidence, in its conformity with universal spiritual experience; and the truth of it, lying within the four corners of the conception, is above and beyond the power of historical criticism.—Froude.

Old Theory Exploded.

I have known vast quantities of nonsense talked about bad men not looking you in the face. Don't trust that conventional idea. Dishonest people will stare you out of countenance any day in the week if there is anything to be got by it.—Dickens.

Narcolipsy.

Ever wonder what the matter was, after eating, when that drowsy feeling overcame you? When you felt you'd give almost everything for a little sleep? Many people are rusty. Their harsh, unguinly manners eat out whatever is good in their own character.

Registration of Women.

Preparations for the women's registration are rapidly approaching completion in the Thirty-first ward.

The experience of the allied countries having shown the necessity of a census of the woman power of the country, President Wilson requested a general registration of women. In compliance with this request Governor Lowden by proclamation appointed the week of November 5 as the time.

The registration is in the hands of the woman's committee, council of national defense, which has organized branches in each ward. The Thirty-first ward branch has been working for some time through the clubs already existing in the ward, acquainting the women with the purpose of the registration and the work of the woman's committee.

The clubs have responded generously to the call. The Community club has taken charge of the work in several Englewood precincts. The Parent-Teacher associations are rounding up their districts. The fraternal and church clubs are loyally co-operating. Many women have volunteered as registrars and have taken the training. Many more are needed, as the ward contains about twenty-four thousand women of registration age and it is estimated that about three hundred registrars are required. All women willing to serve their country in this emergency are requested to send their names to the chairman of registration, Miss Kathryn Fraley, 5753 Peoria Street. Teachers are particularly urged to serve. A training class will be conducted in the Holmes school, Fifty-sixth and Morgan streets, Friday, November 2, at 2:30 p. m. There will also be one at the Copernicus school, Sixtieth and Throop streets, Wednesday, October 31, at 2:30 p. m. Training classes are conducted every day except Saturday at C. N. Be a Home Soldier.

Join the Englewood battalion of Governor Lowden's state volunteers. They are training. Come join them. The board of education has opened the Normal Arts gymnasium, 68th St. and Steward Ave., every Tuesday and Thursday evening free. No dues or fees to get this military training. The business men of 63rd St. are making arrangements for uniforms.

A mistaken conception prevails of the statutory obligation of the Illinois Volunteer Training corps. First, it must be understood that these units do not take the Haye oath, and they are not subject to national service, neither will they be called out for camp duty nor called out of Cook county. But they are the military backers of the governor to preserve law and order of the state, and take the place of the National Guards that have been taken from the state, and will receive the same rate of pay when called to active service.

The state council of defense is doing everything to make life tenable, by keeping the state free from violence and mob law. And as the number of these volunteers is limited to 6,000, it will be but a short time before this quota is filled, as many are eager to assist the governor in defending their home, state and liberty, and do not want to be classed as total slackers.

If a mob came to your home to deprive you of your rights, property or life, you then would fight, so let us get together as an organized body to defend our home and rights.

Enrollment blanks to join the I. V. T. corps can be had from any of the following, who are officers: John T. Kerwin, 6800 Union Ave.; Eugene L. Perry, 619 W. 60th St.; Robert E. Mrs. C. H. Hubbell of 9322 South Winchester Ave. left last week for a visit with relatives at North Adams Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Rowe, 1441 99th St., have returned from a vacation trip, Mr. Rowe spending his in Beerderburg, Ind., and Mrs. Rowe in Menford, Wis.

Mr. George Powers, 9212 Longwood drive, who spent some time in the Orient in the interest of his tea business, returned last Friday. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Powers, met him at Vancouver, B. C.

Community House Woman's club held their meeting on Tuesday afternoon. The women are interested in registration and food conservation and are all axious to be of service to the country. A plan was discussed to entertain the lads on Halloween so that the old-time pranks of destructiveness would be averted.

I CAN'T GO TO THE FRONT—BUT—

I can't go to the front with you;
The reason why—what matters it?
Perhaps I am too old, or stiff
To do your sort of bit.

It breaks my heart to stay behind;
I'd give my eyes for half a chance
To smash the Kaiser's hellish plans
With you out there in France.

You're going into trench and reek,
To shrapnel rip and crashing shell;
God plans your work in heaven, but
You work it out in hell.

You felt the call and left your all,
Your loved ones and your babies, too;
But then, the Hun snarled at our gates;
The fight was up to you.

The Hun was wallowing in crime;
Beneath its claws lay tortured Truth;
The bleeding world cried out to you,
To give your strength and youth.

I've seen your countless thousands go
With neither noisy boast nor brag,
And your brave eyes shone with the gleam
Of our star-studded flag.

We cannot pay for blood you shed,
Nor buy devotion such as yours,
But we can stand behind you, boys,
As long as life endures.

Your pain shall be our travail, and
The ones you love shall be our care;
Our work and sacrifice is here,
While yours is over there.

We'll make our brains and dollars count;
We'll build this righteous fight upon
Our billions plus our hearts and prayers
To break the bloody Hun.

Old Uncle Sam needs you out there;
Though we can't fight, we'll heed his call
To lend and, if need be, to give
You boys our last and all.

We can't go to the front with you;
But money, which some fool called trash,
Shall flow for you, who stand between
Us and the Kaiser's lash.

You are the red-blood barrier
That stands between us and the curse
That struck down tortured Belgium,
And maybe what is worse.

Count on us to the finish, boys;
Till purse is flat and bone is bare!
There's naught too much to do or give
For you who fight out there.

"JOHN MARTIN."

Englewood High School Notes.

On Wednesday, October 24, the pupils and teachers of the high school were dismissed at noon, in order that they might swell the numbers at the Liberty day parade. The two military companies left somewhat earlier, because they were to march.

The board of education has voted to begin the construction of the new high school buildings. The work will begin as soon as possible. This is the news that the pupils and faculty of the school have been waiting for now some years.

On October 23 Mr. Shine took those members of the Oracle who are members of the cast of the "Mock Trial," which they will soon present, on a trip to the court of domestic relations, in order that they might get some pointers. They found the trip both interesting and beneficial.

The inter-class basket ball and captain ball teams, after some weeks of practoce, are now striving for the championship. A great deal of interest is being shown. Enthusiastic classmates come out to root for their class teams. These pre-session games should develop some good material for our school basket ball teams, which will soon begin practicing.

After more than 25 years of faithful service, Miss Derrat has left Englewood. She is now dean of girls and assistant principal at the Morgan Park High school. Both faculty and student body were very sorry to see her leave, but they congratulate her upon her promotion. They hope that in her new field of endeavor she will receive that measure of respect which is due her.

On Saturday, October 20, Englewood boys defeated Lane to the tune of 20-13. The game was one of many thrills. Lane fought doggedly and at times proved dangerous, but Englewood's fighting spirit proved too much for her. The team shows much improvement since the Harrison game, and we hope they will continue to improve so that they may make a record for themselves. Come on and boost them along!

On Saturday, October 27, our football team meets Wendell Phillips at Normal's ball park, the game beginning at ten o'clock. An enthusiastic rally was held in Junior hall on Tuesday. A big crowd is expected at the game.

Rubbing It In.

An organist in a Welsh cathedral recently scored over the dean and chapter. The authorities had attempted to displace him, but he obtained an injunction restraining them. On the following day the unrepentant organist greeted the entrance of the bishop and clergy with the well-known tune, "Fixed in His Everlasting Seat."

Can't Do Both.

"De man dat wants to do all de talkin'," said Uncle Eben, "is mighty likely to leave other people do most of the thinkin'."

Bell System

Three Hundred Forty-Seven Telephone Calls Every Second!

IN THE BELL SYSTEM on an average every time the clock ticks, day and night, three hundred forty-seven new telephone calls are being made.

THE REQUIREMENTS for service for use in the all-important work of National Preparedness are many and urgent. The need to avoid waste is pressing, and in the interests of National Efficiency the lines must be kept as free as possible to handle the abnormal amount of "traffic" used in the many war-time activities.

JUST ONE MINUTE SAVED on each telephone call made in the Bell System every day means a saving of fifty-seven years of productive time each day!

You can save time on every call you make

By looking in the book to make sure you call the right number and thus avoid the delays in "wrong number" calling;

By talking clearly and distinctly, directly into the telephone, so that repetition of parts of the conversation is not necessary;

By answering all telephone calls promptly with your name or the name of your company, so that time is not wasted in uncertain inquiries and introductions.

Recruit Didn't Have It.

While we are on military matters it might be just as well to give forth to a palpitating world, all eager for anything that has to do with a gun, the latest thing that the enterprising press agent of the Marine Corps has turned out. This soldier of the sea tells many stories. You can believe them or not, just as you please, writes a correspondent.

He says that knowledge of the rifle and all its parts is an important part of the training given to the marines at their League Island camp. To the raw recruits the rifles are pretty puzzling.

During the morning inspection recently one of the future sea soldiers handled his rifle poorly. The recruit was taken to task by his officer.

"Are you acquainted with the parts of your rifle?" asked the officer, sternly.

"Yes, sir," the recruit replied.

"Well, where is the balance located?"

"I don't know, sir," said the marine, glancing nervously at his rifle. "It was all here this morning."

WOMEN SUFFERERS NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer a great deal with pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness and may be despondent and irritable.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, restores health to the kidneys and is just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large bottle immediately from any drug store.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper. Adv.

WOMEN SLOWER THAN MEN

Double the Number Required In New York Banks, but They Are More Methodical.

There is at present no woman officer of a New York city bank, and only one in New Jersey, but if the war lasts long enough it may well be, as it is in Canada now, that the banks will virtually be run by women. Already, it is estimated, 20,000 women have been taken on in the Wall street district since the United States entered the war last April, says the New York Evening Post.

Women are slower, but more careful, said an official of the Mechanics and Metals bank, so, although twice as many women as men are needed to do the same amount of work, the bank loses no money on extra salaries, because the women save hundreds of dollars which had to be paid to the clearing house for the men's mistakes. Each mistake costs $1 and the records show that sometimes men's mistakes cost $25 or $30 a week.

The average downtown bank has lost 20 per cent of its men and taken on 40 per cent women. The Mechanics and Metals bank now has 60 women and they are being taken on by tens or twenties each week. So far these 60 women are taking the places of only 36 men, which shows the difference in rapidity, but the official of the bank pointed out that it would be a serious problem when the men come home for their jobs.

"Our hope is," he said, "that the business will be big enough then to accommodate them all."

Up-to-Date Wedding Gifts.

"Well, what sort of wedding presents did you get, girlie—the usual assortment of berry spoons and pickle forks?"

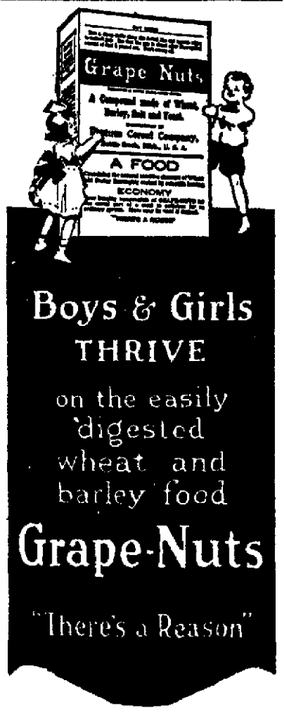
"Not on your esteemed life. I got a sack of potatoes, four dozen fresh eggs, a peck of onions, and a Liberty bond."

His Plaintive Plea.

Philadelphia draws the last number in exemption stories. A colored citizen declared to his board chairman: "Boss, Ah ain't got no wife. Ah's only jest 'ngaged. But kain't Ah go to jail fo' that?"

Unable to Read.

A large number of Turkish women are unable to read or write their own difficult language.



The Real Man

By FRANCIS LYNDE

(Copyright by Chas. Scribner's Sons)

On the day following the hindering concrete failure at the dam, Smith gave still more color to the charges of his detractors in the business field. Those whose affairs brought them in contact with him found a man suddenly grown years older and harder, boody and harshly dictatorial, not to say quarrelsome; a man who seemed to have parted, in the short space of a single night, with all of the humanizing affabilities which he had shown to such a marked degree in the reorganizing and refinancing of the irrigation project.

"We've got our young Napoleon of finance on the toboggan slide, at last," was the way in which Mr. Crawford Stanton phrased it for the bejeweled lady at their luncheon in the Hophra cafe. "Kinzie is about to throw him over, and all this talk about botch-work on the dam is getting his goat. They're telling it around town this morning that you can't get near him without risking a fight. Old Man Backus went up to his office in behalf of a bunch of the scared stockholders, and Smith abused him first and then threw him out bodily—hurt him pretty savagely, they say."

The large lady's accurately pencled eyebrows went up in mild surprise.

"Bad temper?" she queried.

"Bad temper, or an acute attack of 'rattleitis;' you can take your choice. I suppose he hasn't, by any chance, quarreled with Miss Richlander overnight?—or has he?"

The fat lady shook her diamonds. "I should say not. They were at luncheon together in the ladies' ordinary as I came down a few minutes ago."

Thus the partner of Crawford Stanton's joys and sorrows. But an invisible onlooker in the small dining room above-stairs might have drawn other conclusions. Smith and the daughter of the Lawrenceville magnate had a small table to themselves, and if the talk were not precisely quarrelsome, it leaned that way at times.

"I have never seen you quite so brutal and impossible as you are today, Montague. You don't seem like the same man. Are you going to reconsider and take me out to the Baldwin ranch this afternoon?"

"And let you parade me there as your latest acquisition?—never in this world!"

"More brutality. Positively you are getting me into a frame of mind in which Tucker Jibbey will seem like a blessed relief. Whatever do you suppose has become of Tucker?"

"How should I know?"

"If he had come in last night, and you had met him—as I asked you to—in any such heavenly temper as you are indulging now, I might think you had murdered him."

It was doubtless by sheer accident that Smith, reaching at the moment for the salad oil, overturned his water glass. But the small accident by no means accounted for the sudden graying of his face under the Timunyoni wind tan—for that or for the shaking hands with which he seconded the waiter's anxious efforts to repair the damage. When they were alone again, the momentary trepidation had given place to a renewed hardness that lent a biting rasp to his voice.

"Kinzie, the suspicious old banker that I've been telling you about, is determined to run me down," he said, changing the subject abruptly. "I've got it pretty straight that he is planning to send one of his clerks to the Topaz district to try and find your father, in the hope that he will tell what he knows about me."

"Does this Mr. Kinzie know where father is to be found?"

"He doesn't; that's the only hitch."

Miss Verda's smile across the little table was level-eyed.

"I could be lots of help to you, Montague, in this fight you are making, if you'd only let me," she suggested.

"I'll fight for my own hand," was the grating rejoinder. "I can assure you, right now, that Kinzie's messenger will never reach your father—alive."

"Ooh!" shuddered the beauty, with a little lift of the rounded shoulders. "How utterly and hopelessly primitive! Let me show you a much simpler alternative. I have a map of the mining district, you know. Father left it with me—in case I should want to communicate with him."

"You wouldn't get in a man's way with any fine-spun theories of the ultimate right and wrong, would you? You wouldn't say that the only great man is the man who loves his fellow men, and all that?"

Again the handsome shoulders were lifted, this time in cool scorn.

"Are you quoting the little ranch person?" she inquired. Then she answered his query: "The only great men worth speaking of are the men who win. For the lack of something better to do, I'm willing to help you win, Montague. Most naturally, I am the one who would know where my father is to be found. And I have changed my mind about wanting to drive to the Baldwins'. We'll compromise on the play—if there is a play."

"There is a play, and I have the seats," he announced briefly.

"Merci!" she flung back. "Small favors thankfully received, and large ones in proportion; though it's hardly a favor, this time, because I have paid for it in advance. Mr. Kinzie's young man came to see me this morning."

"What did you do?"

"I gave him a tracing of my map, and he was so grateful it made me want to tell him that it was all wrong; that he wouldn't find father in a month if he followed the directions."

"But you didn't!"

"No; I can play the game, when it seems worth while."

Smith was frowning thoughtfully when he led her to the elevator alcove.

"My way would have been the surer," he muttered, half to himself.

"Barbarian!" she laughed; and then: "To think that you were once a 'debutantes' darling!' Oh, yes; I know it was Carter Westfall who said it first, but it was true enough to name you instantly for all Lawrenceville."

CHAPTER XVII.

The Megalomaniac.

Sixty-odd hours before the expiration of the time limit, Bartley Williams, lean and somber-eyed from the strain he had been under for many days and nights, saw the president's gray roadster plowing its way through the mesa sand on the approach to the construction camp, and was glad.

"I've been trying all the morning to squeeze out time to get into town," he told Baldwin, when the roadster came to a stand in front of the shack commissary. "Where is Smith?"

The colonel threw up his hand in a gesture expressive of complete detachment.

"Don't ask me. John has gone plumb loco in these last two or three days. It's as much as your life's worth to ask him where he has been or where he is going or what he means to do next."

"He hasn't stopped fighting?" said the engineer, half aghast at the bare possibility.

"Oh, no; he is at it harder than ever—going it just a shaving too strong, is what I'd tell him, if he'd let me get near enough to shout at him. Last night, after the theater, he went around to the Herald office, and the way they're talking it on the street, he was aiming to shoot up the whole newspaper joint if Mark Allen, the editor, wouldn't take back a bunch of the lies he's been publishing about the High Line. It wound up in a scrap of some sort. I don't know who got the worst of it, but John isn't crippled up any, to speak of, this morning—only in his temper."

Williams shook his head. "I guess we'll have to stand for the grouch, if he'll only keep busy. He has the hot end of it. We couldn't very well get along without him, right now, colonel. With all due respect to you and the members of the board, he is the fighting backbone of the whole outfit."

"He is that," was Baldwin's ready admission. "He is just what we've been calling him from the first, Bartley—a three-ply, dyed-in-the-wool wonder in his specialty. He is fighting now like a man in the last ditch, and I believe he thinks he is in the last ditch."

"It will be only two days more," said the engineer, saying it as one who has been counting the days in keen anxiety. And then: "Stillings told me yesterday that we're not going to get an extension of the time limit from the state authorities."

"No; that little fire went out, blink, just as Smith said it would. Stanton's backers have the political pull—in the state as well as in Washington. They're going to hold us to the letter of the law."

"Let 'em do it. We'll win out yet—if we don't run up against one or both of the only two things I'm afraid of now: high water, or the railroad caldown."

"The railroad grab? Have you heard anything more about that?"

"That is what I was trying to get to town for; to talk the railroad business over with you and Stillings and Smith. They've had a gang here this morning—a bunch of engineers, with a stranger, who gave his name as Hallowell, in charge. They claimed to be verifying the old survey, and Hallowell notified me formally that our dam stood squarely in their right of way for a bridge crossing of the river."

"They didn't serve any papers on you, did they?" inquired the colonel anxiously.

"No; the notice was verbal. But Hallowell wound up with a threat. He said, 'You've had due warning, legally and otherwise, Mr. Williams. This is our right of way, bought and paid for, as we can prove when the matter gets into the courts. You mustn't be surprised if we take whatever steps may be necessary to recover what belongs to us.'"

"I'm Going to Hunt Up Mr. Crawford Stanton."

"Force?" queried the Missourian, with a glint of the border fighter's fire in his eyes."

"Maybe. But we're ready for that. Did you know that Smith loaded half a dozen cases of new rifles on a motortruck yesterday, and had them sent out here?"

"No!"

"He did—and told me to say nothing about it. It seems that he ordered them some time ago from an arms agency in Denver. That fellow foresees everything, colonel."

Dexter Baldwin had climbed into his car and was making ready to turn it for the run back to town.

"If I were you, Bartley, I believe I'd open up those gun boxes and pass the word among as many of the men as you think you can trust with rifles in their hands. I'll tell Smith—and Bob Stillings."

Colonel Baldwin saw the company's attorney, as soon as he reached Brewster. But Smith was not in his office, and no one seemed to know where he had gone. The colonel shrewdly suspected that Miss Richlander was making another draft upon the secretary's time, and he said as much to Starbuck, later in the day, when the mine owner sauntered into the High Line headquarters and proceeded to roll the inevitable cigarette.

"Not any, this time, colonel," was Starbuck's rebuttal. "You've missed it by a whole row of apple trees. Miss Rich-dollars is over at the hotel. I saw her at luncheon with the Stantons less than an hour ago."

"You haven't seen Smith, have you?"

"No; but I know where he is. He's out in the country, somewhere, taking the air in Dick Maxwell's runabout. I wanted to borrow the wagon myself, and Dick told me he had already lent it to Smith."

"We're needing him," said the colonel shortly, and then he told Starbuck of the newest development in the paper-railroad scheme of obstruction.

From that the talk drifted to a discussion of Kinzie's latest attitude. By this time there had been an alarming number of stock sales by small holders, all of them handled by the Brewster City National, and it was plainly evident that Kinzie had finally gone over to the enemy and was buying—as cheaply as possible—for some unnamed customer.

"If they keep it up, they can wear us out by littles, and we'll break our necks finishing the dam and saving the franchise only to turn it over to them in the round-up," said the colonel dejectedly. "I've talked until I'm hoarse, but you can't talk narrow into an empty bone, Billy. I used to think we had a fairly good bunch of men in with us, but in these last few days I've been changing my mind at a fox-trot."

The remainder of the day, up to the time when the offices were closing and the colonel was making ready to go home, passed without incident. In Smith's continued absence Starbuck had offered to go to the dam to stand a night watch with Williams against a possible surprise by the right-of-way claimants; and Stillings, who had been petitioning for an injunction, came up to report progress just as Baldwin was locking his desk.

"The judge has taken it under advisement, but that is as far as he would go today," said the lawyer. "It's simply a bold steal, of course. I'm sworn to uphold the law, and I can't counsel armed resistance. Just the same, I hope Williams has his nerve with him."

"He has; and I haven't lost mine yet," snapped a voice at the door; and Smith came in, dust-covered and swarthy with the grime of the wind-swept grasslands. Out of the pocket of his driving coat he drew a thick packet of papers and slapped it upon the drawn-down curtain of Baldwin's desk. "There you are," he went on gratingly. "Now you can tell Mr. David Kinzie to go straight to blazes with his stock-pinching, and the more money he puts into it, the more somebody's going to lose!"

"John!—what have you done?" demanded Baldwin.

"I've shown 'em what it means to go up against a winner!" was the half-triumphant, half-savage exultation. "I have put a crimp in that fence-climbing banker of yours that will last him for one while! I've secured thirty-day options, at par, on enough High Line stock to swing a clear majority if Kinzie should buy up every other share there is outstanding. It has taken me all day, and I've driven a thousand miles, but the thing is done."

"But, John: If anything should happen, and we'd have to make good on those options. . . . It would break the last man of us!"

"We're not going to let things happen!" was the gritting rejoinder. "I've told you both a dozen times that I'm in this thing to win! You take care of those options, Stillings; they're worth a million dollars to somebody. Lock 'em up somewhere and then forget where they are. Now I'm going to hunt up Mr. Crawford Stanton—before I eat or sleep!"

"Easy, John; hold up a minute!" the colonel broke in soothingly; and Stillings, more practical, closed the office door silently and put his back against it. "This is a pretty sudden country, but there is some sort of a limit, you know," the big Missourian went on. "What's your idea in going to Stanton?"

"I mean to give him twelve hours in which to pack his trunk and get out of Brewster and the Timunyoni. If he hasn't disappeared by tomorrow morning—"

Stillings was signaling in dumb show to Baldwin. He had quietly opened the door and was crooking his finger and making signs over his shoulder toward the corridor. Baldwin saw what was wanted, and immediately shot his desk cover open and turned on the lights.

"That last lot of steel and cement vouchers was made out yesterday, John," he said, slipping the rubber band from a file of papers in the desk. "If you'll take time to sit down here and run 'em over, and put your name on 'em, I'll hold Martin long enough to let him get the checks in tonight's mail. I'll be back after a little."

Smith dragged up the president's big swivel chair and planted himself in it, and an instant later he was lost to everything save the columns of figures on the vouchers. Stillings had let himself out, and when the colonel followed him, the lawyer cautiously closed the door of the private office, and edged Baldwin into the corridor.

"We've mighty near got a madman to deal with in there, colonel," he whispered, when the two were out of earshot. "I was watching his eyes when he said that about Stanton, and they fairly blazed. He's going to kill somebody, if we don't look out."

Baldwin was shaking his head dubiously.

"He's acting like a locoed thoroughbred that's gone outlaw," he said. "Do you reckon he's sure-enough crazy, Bob?"

"Only in the murder nerve. This deal with the options shows that he's all to the good on the business side. That was the smoothest trick that's been turned in any stage of this dodging fight with the big fellows. It simply knocks Kinzie's rat-gnawing game dead. If there were only somebody who could calm Smith down a little and bring him to reason—somebody near enough to him to dig down under his shell and get at the real man that used to be there when he first took hold with us—"

"A woman?" queried Baldwin, frowning disapproval in anticipation of what Stillings might be going to suggest.

"A woman for choice, of course. I was thinking of this young woman over at the Hophra House; anybody can see with half an eye that she has a pretty good grip on him. Suppose we go across the street and give her an invitation to come and do a little missionary work on Smith. She looks level-headed and sensible enough to take it the way it's meant."

Stillings was a lawyer and had no scruples, but the colonel had them in just proportion to his Southern birth and breeding.

"I don't like to drag a woman into it, any way or shape, Bob," he protested; and he would have gone on to say that he had good reason to believe that Miss Richlander's influence over Smith might not be at all of the meliorating sort, but Stillings cut him short.

"There need be no 'dragging.' The young woman doubtless knows the business situation; she evidently knows Smith a whole lot better than we do. It's a chance, and we'd better try it. He's good for half an hour or so with those vouchers."

MUSIC NEED OF FIGHTING MEN

Blare of Band Instruments Brings Cheer to Troops and Is Just as Necessary as Ammunition.

"The blare of the trombone, the shrill note of the piccolo and the drums blending with other band instruments in a military organization give cheer to the men with the guns and is just as necessary as ammunition," says Charles H. Parsons of New York. "During the Spanish-American war the tunes happily accepted were those of the vaudeville stage, when 'There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight' was said to have led troops to the capture of San Juan hill. The old Civil war melodies having the swing of march cadence were first of all, 'Dixie,' probably used, at least hummingly, by the soldiers of the North, as those who followed the 'Stars and Bars.' And it is worth while to recall that 'Dixie' was the most popular of all the melodies strummed in camp and sung in action of all the old-time songs during the war of 1898.

"Canned music will give to the boys at the front much of their entertainment evenings to come," added Mr. Parsons. "The phonographic records will cheer many groups. And they will have programs provided by the stars of the operatic world and other entertainers who may not give to them their cheer first hand."

Costly Living.

Most of the high cost of living comes from buying things we don't need. If it wasn't for that we would all live off the fat of the land, and the rich and well-to-do would have enough left to help other people and boost the uplift of the city. If all the money that society throws away on idle pleasures and needless things were redistributed equitably among the people, everybody would be living on lamb chops, lima beans and pound cake; and the reflex action of such a situation would compensate the well-off for the loss of their joyless pleasures. But the old ideal of the university seems still to influence the people—"never to vex at the land's ridiculous misuse." It wouldn't cost a cent to have it otherwise, as long as our money goes into pleasures and trifles. But take each individual life and cut off the foolish and needless things, and such a one would occupy the proud eminence of a champion of nobler things.—Ohio State Journal.

Range Finders Delicate Instruments.

The remarkable performance of long-range naval guns is based on optical instruments of beautiful delicacy and precision. Naval range finders are sometimes built more than 30 feet long. Periscopes as used both on land and sea are based on the use of high-grade glass, though the need for great perfection in the instruments is not so pressing.

It is evident that in developing the processes for making our own optical glass of the highest quality we have taken an important step toward independent military efficiency.

SPAIN FULL OF MUSIC NOW

Bands of Hungarian Gypsies Fled From France at Beginning of War to Avoid Internment.

Spain is filled with music. At nearly any hour of night or day one can hear the twanging and twinging of musical instruments. The country is overrun by orchestras of Hungarian gypsies.

These bands are among the most famous in Europe. They usually are located at Paris, Monte Carlo, Nice and other centers of gay life. When the war began these players, being Hungarians, had to get out of France or be interned as enemies. If they had returned to Hungary they would have had to put rifles on their shoulders in place of violins. So they all migrated into Spain, filling the country with music.

Spain already had its share of gypsies, relics of the days of the Moors. These greeted the newcomers with open arms. They play together and often hold grand entertainments, at which one of the Hungarian gypsy bands play, an Austrian-Polish gypsy sings and a Spanish gypsy dances. Pastor Imperio, the fiery queen of the Spanish gypsies who married the king of the bull fighters, Guyio, is one of the star dancers.

It is said the weird, Oriental strains of the Eastern gypsies combining with the wild torendor music of the Spaniards makes strange but pleasing music. A few bars of American ragtime is introduced now and then to give dash to the dancing of the tango and one-step. This medley of music is heard everywhere, at entertainments, theaters, hotels, concert halls and even in the streets, for Spain is crowded with these wandering players.

Venison.

Venison, as a plain roast, is not a very interesting dish; it is one of those foods that depend greatly upon the "fixings," and the fixings nowadays seriously run up the cost. When you have paid for a pot of red currant jelly to go with it you haven't saved much. In the days when venison was an aristocratic food it was served with all manner of sauces, either piquant or sweet, into the composition of which wine entered, and the venison pastry of romance and the baronial hall was re-enforced with spices, unlimited eggs and boned phensants and partridges. People who have been trying it recently for the first time are not—well, enthusiastic about it.—London Chronicle.

Too Much Like Home.

John had been spending the day with one of his mother's friends and when it was time for him to leave his hostess said: "Now, John, pick up all the playthings," to which he replied, "Well, I'll do it, but I don't want to because it makes me think I am at home."

An Illinois Case

Chas. Masson, Depot St., West Chicago, Ill., says: "Sitting in one position so long at a time brought on kidney trouble. There was a dull, ache in my back day and night and often I had to stop work. The pain nearly killed me. The kidney secretions burned terribly in passage and I had to get up at night to pass them. I was nervous and lost flesh. In fact, I was a physical wreck. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me completely and I have worked hard every day since."

War Declared on Rats by U. S. Gov't.

The government at Washington is preparing a campaign that should be effective in killing the rats that are so destructive both to lives and property. A conservative estimate places the loss of foodstuffs from rats at over two hundred million dollars annually, and in the present scarcity of food, this loss must be prevented. The most efficient way to "Kill the Rat" is by the use of Stearns' Paste, and thousands of dollars worth have been bought by the government. Every housekeeper troubled with rats, mice, roaches or waterbugs should buy a small box of this reliable exterminator for thirty-five cents, and stop further loss of food in her home. Adv.

Uncanny.

"The way Germany prepared for a generation for this war was positively uncanny," said Representative Frear of Minnesota. "Yes, Germany's forty years of minute war preparation is as uncanny as the story of the potato bugs.

"On an autumn evening a group of Minnesota farmers sat round the fire in the general store and complained of the potato bugs' ravages.

"'The pests ate my whole potato crop in two weeks,' said one farmer.

"'They ate my crop in two days,' said a second farmer, 'and then they roosted on the trees to see if I'd plant more.'

"A drummer for a seed house cleared his throat.

"'Gents,' he said, 'all that's very remarkable. Let me tell you, though, what I saw in our own store. I saw a couple of potato bugs examining the books about a week before planting time to see who had bought seed.'"

Making a House a Home.

In planning a home it is essential to building satisfaction that the prospective house owner decides whether he wants to dwell in his own or some other person's home; that he decide just the sort of home he wishes to erect and follow those plans, also that he build his house on honest lines that conform to the principles of good architecture.

IMPROVEMENTS ARE NOT TAXED

Western Canada Does Not Tax Stock or Improvements but Collects an Additional Tax From Land Speculators.

Owners of uncultivated lands in Western Canada are loud in their protests against an extra tax on their lands because they are not under cultivation. Western Canada, through its provincial governments, is endeavoring to force the speculative land owner to either sell his land to a settler or to cultivate it himself. At present a surtax of a few cents an acre is levied against all wild land, so that the owner of land held in its natural state, without improvements, is contributing more taxes to the government than the owner of a farm that is cultivated and even improved with buildings and stock to the value of thousands of dollars. In order to encourage the farmer to improve and to go into stock raising, he is not charged one cent of taxes on any of his improvements, implements or stock of any kind.

As a result of this surtax on uncultivated or speculatively held lands, the owners are now trying to sell them to actual settlers, and, in nearly every instance, have been offering on very easy terms of payment, usually a quarter down, and the balance extending over a term of years at prices much lower than their productive value would warrant.

A world-wide shortage in farm stuffs has given a new value to all agricultural products and the margin of profit today is greater than ever in the past. It is true labor and implements have increased in price, but it is now possible to secure 50% profit in farming, and higher. Possibly not on the $100 to $200 an acre farm lands but on land that can now, under existing conditions, be purchased at from $15 to $30 per acre. Western Canadian farm lands are as productive as any in the world and can be as economically farmed. Wheat yields of from 30 to 50 bushels per acre have been common in Western Canada during the past few years, and the farmers have been too busy farming all they can so as to sell as much wheat as possible at $2.00 a bushel, that they have not had time to do any talking or writing. It is doubtful if there ever was such an opportunity to make big profits in farming. The value of each year's crop has been in hundreds of cases more than the market value of the land it was grown on. It is unreasonable to suppose such a condition will last long, as the land now being forced onto the market by surtax on speculative owners will soon become absorbed by those who have learned of these highly profitable wheat lands. The news is spreading gradually throughout the high priced land districts in the United States, where there is a renewed awakening to the realization that the maximum profit in farming is not being obtained when it is possible to secure from forty to seventy per cent return on the investment in Western Canada. Many who have been planning to visit Western Canada for the purpose of personally investigating conditions are leaving this month, when the good weather can be enjoyed. As threshing operations and marketing of grain is under way, no better time could be selected to secure first hand and reliable information from the farmers themselves. The winter months afford ample time for completing moving arrangements, to allow the settler to take up residence in early spring, so as to get something done next year and to make a start on the big and profitable farming operations in Western Canada.—Advertisement.

A Saxon-French Cigar Lighter.

Several years ago the then new minister of France, M. Klotz, decided to impose a tax of two francs, or 40 cents American money, on each cigar lighter used in that country. The reason for this is that the sale of matches in France is in the hands of the government monopoly and the portable lighters interfered with the sale of the matches. On the other hand the matches have become so bad in quality that they are subject of complaint and ridicule. The law has become unpopular and there is an effort now being made to have the order rescinded. Notwithstanding the fact that an increased tax was placed on tobacco by the French government several years ago, it has caused a tendency to increase smoking and that is proven by the many smokers to be seen in public places and thoroughfares.

Most Admired Statue.

What is the most admired statue in Washington? The memorial to Mrs. Adams by Mr. Saint-Gaudens, thinks Mr. Moore. He says that "in spite of the remoteness of location and the difficulty of finding it in Rock Creek cemetery, no other work of art in Washington is really seen by so many people. Undoubtedly the element of mystery in both figure and setting has to do with its fame; but I prefer to think that in this memorial the sculptor has expressed (using his own words to me) 'the soul face to face with the greatest of all mysteries'—the problem, if a man die shall he live again?"

Such a piece of sculpture, touching every mind and heart, outwears in its appeal all the colossal figures and speaking likenesses. It would triumph in any referendum and need never fear a verdict of recall.—New York Sun.

Canadian Farmers Profit From Wheat

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

The war's devastation of European crops has caused an unusual demand for grain from the American Continent. The people of the world must be fed and wheat near $2 a bushel offers great profits to the farmer. Canada's invitation is therefore especially attractive. She wants settlers to make money and happy, prosperous homes for themselves by helping her raise immense wheat crops.

You can get a Homestead of 160 acres FREE and other lands at remarkably low prices. During many years Canadian wheat fields have averaged 20 bushels to the acre many yields as high as 45 bushels to the acre. Wonderful crops also of Oats, Barley and Flax.

Mixed farming as profitable an industry as grain raising. The excellent grasses full of nutrition are the only food required for beef or dairy purposes. Good schools, churches, markets convenient, climate excellent.

There is an extra demand for farm labor to replace the many young men who have volunteered for the war. The Government is urging farmers to put extra acreage into grain. Write for literature and particulars as to reduced railway rates to Supt. of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or

Casey says: "Sum paple can't stand prosperity, boot the most iv us don't git a chance to thry it."

Many a girl gives up a nice, easy job for the chance of working hard all the rest of her life for her board and clothes.

If people would only quit telling of their imaginary troubles, their conversation would be more healthful, and so would they.

I was in Irvin Penhallegon's yesterday when a lady rushed in hastily and exclaimed: "Give me a mouse trap, quickly, please. I want to cach a train," and now Irv is advertising mouse traps that will catch a train.

The pessimist is always wailing about the other fellow's luck. The optimist knows that "luck" consists in being at the right place when something is going to happen and then assisting Destiny with a push.

After Casey had punished his youngest son and then quoted Solomon's "Spare the rod and spoil the child," the young hopeful tearfully rejoined: "Yis, mebbe he did say it, but it wor afther he wor growed oop, though."

"I asked for alimony of $50 a week. I see women are getting that right along." "But, madam," expostulated the lawyer, "your husband is earning only $12." "What's that got to do with it? I thought the government provided the alimony."

Ike Goldhammer made little Ikey a present of a bowl of gold fishes, and he says when he came home that night they were all dead. The suspicious kid had caught them one by one and subjected them to the acid test to see if they were genuine.

Even the lowly comma, when misplaced, may be the cause of disaster. Of this no better instance can be found than that where the printer, setting up a little story, asserts: "The two young men spent the evening with two young ladies; and after they left, the girls got drunk."

The small Englewood girl was at the table drawing, and her mother asked her what the picture was to be. "God," replied the child simply. "But you can't draw God," protested the mother, "because you have never seen him; no one has ever seen him, and no one knows what he looks like." The small girl licked her pencil and put in another touch. "They'll all know when I finish this," she said innocently.

Little Tommy, who is of rather an inquiring turn of mind and who had been gazing at his father's somewhat rosy countenance for some time, at last said: "Papa, what makes yer face and nose so dre'fly red?" "The east wind, of course," answered papa, rather hastily. "Do not talk so much, Thomas, and pass me the beer." It was then that a voice came from the other end of the table in dulcet tones, saying: "Tommy, dear, pass your father the east wind, and be careful not to spill it on the cloth."

"Did you see that?" yelled the excited man in the Panama hat. "That robber of an umpire calls Gilligan out at third and Rafferty never come within a foot of touchin' him." "It looked that way to me, too," admitted the man beside him. "Still, I dare say the umpire could see the play better from where he was than we could from up here." "Ah, go on home!" retorted the other savagely. "You ain't got no business goin' to a ball game. You're one of these blamed pacifists, that's what you are!"

The parson's wife was tireless in discouraging the use of tobacco. According to the good lady, it was the weed which made a veritable wilderness of the rose garden of life. "Well, Annie," she remarked to one of the village lasses about to get married, "I hope your chosen is one of the nonchimney variety—does not smoke." "He ain't what you'd call a slave to the habit, ma'am," replied the girl, "but he ain't exactly a stranger to it. I don't feel called on to put a stop to it, neither. You see, I want him to be happy and comfortable about the house when we're married." "Surely he would be just as happy without that dreadful tobacco," advanced the lady. "P'raps he would, ma'am, and p'raps he wouldn't," came the answer. "Anyhow, I wouldn't like him to keep on findin' jobs out o' sight every few minutes, then come in eatin' corfy berries, like the poor parson."

This occurred over in Michigan at one of the so-called resorts where us fellows from town get the everlasting worst of it at sky-high prices: A guest was preparing to go, when the landlord said, "Goin' already?" "Yes," said the guest, "I must get out of here. I need a vacation." "But you've been here only three days." "Yep, I know, but I've only ten days left to get some summer comfort." "I hope nothing is wrong?" queried the man. "Oh, no; everything appears to be coming right for the mosquitoes in particular." "Oh, that's only temporary," said the host. "They were blown in by the wind." "All right, here's where I blow out," said the determined guest. "But our sunshine was all right, wasn't it?" asked the man who took the money. "Yes, it was fine; just the thing for a glass eater or a stock yards goat." "Oh, well, I'll look for you back next year," said the hopeful man. "Well, if you ever see me coming back here again, it will be to beat you up and clean out the joint," rasped the guest. "Well, you'll recommend the resort to your friends, won't you?" asked the nervy man. "Sure, I will, if I get good and sore at any of them." "Well, I wish you good luck," he answered, but the man came back with "All the good luck I ask is to get away from her on the first train; so long." And he vanished to make way for another bunch of suckers.

District 75, National Army.

A large and enthusiastic gathering of the citizens of District No. 75 National army met at the Normal school assembly hall last Friday night and organized a Comfort and Aid association for the soldiers and sailors, both volunteers and National army men, who have gone from that district.

Fervid and patriotic speeches were made by Superintendent Shoop, Principal William B. Owen, Messrs. William L. Sharp, John B. Devine and Mrs. George S. Haskell. A chorus choir led by Mr William Griswold Smith sang several numbers, which were very well received. After the singing and speaking the meeting organized with the following permanent officers: President, William B. Owen; vice president, John B. Devine; secretary, Mrs. George S. Haskell; treasurer, Mr. George B. Ingersoll; executive committee, Misses Norine Mulvihill, Grace Nichols, Messrs. W. J. Jackson, Robert E. Barbee and William D. Byrne.

The ladies and girls of the district are responding generously to the appeal of Mrs. Haskell that they undertake to knit enough sweaters, sox and wristlets to supply all the men of our district who have joined the colors. Mrs. Haskell, 7133 Yale Ave., is supplying the materials to every one who will do the work. So if you, gentle reader, feel like helping on the good work, kindly communicate with her and she will be glad to enroll you among the "laborers in the vineyard."

The executive committee will meet this week to outline a financial plan of campaign.

Allied Arts and Crafts Exhibit.

An allied arts and crafts exhibit under the auspices of the Women's Clubs of the Third district will be given in the Arts building of the Normal school on the afternoons of October 31, November 1 and 2, beginning each afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

Similar exhibits have been held in several districts throughout the state, creating much interest and enthusiasm. We hope by this agitation to create sufficient interest so that the state of Illinois may have a live state art commission whereby they may establish industrial art schools, and look to our own people for the things in applied arts that Europe has been supplying us with for centuries.

At this exhibit ribbon awards will be given in a competitive exhibit of all hand-made things of the community, including needlework of all kinds, quilts and samplers, rugs, bead work, basketry, jewelry, ceramics, pottery, painting and sculpture (and) Red Cross exhibits, etc.

There will be an exhibit of antiques and heirlooms, Lockport industry exhibit and large display of school childrens' work.

On the afternoon of October 31st there will be a reception to all club members of the district.

At three o'clock in the large auditorium of the Normal school, Mrs. James Parker, state art chairman, speaks on "Possibilities of Art in Our Everyday Lives."

Mr. William Owen, dean of the Normal college, gives an address on "Value of Arts and Crafts From an Educational Standpoint."

November 1st is Community day. Every person in this district is invited to visit the exhibition. There is no admission.

At three o'clock Mr. George Eggers, director of the Art Institute, speaks on "Promotion of Arts and Crafts in Our Country."

Mr. Charles Worst, supervisor of art in the schools, gives an address on "Value of Art in Handwork," and also "The Lockport Industries."

November 2d is School Children's day. All school children in this district are urged to attend. At 3:30 o'clock Miss Lucy S. Silke, supervisor of art in schools, addresses the school children on "Art in Handwork."

This exhibit is in charge of the art department of the twenty women's clubs of the district. Art chairman, Teresa F. Leigh; assisting art chairmen, Mesdames Kalk, Rice, McClure, Blackford, Guthridge, Sippy, Jones, DeYoung, Fisher, Parret, Nichols, Nash, Wishart and Reed; committee on arrangements, Mesdames Parker, Reed, Blackford, McClure, Miller, Doyle, Milnar, Hutchinson and Bednar; Messrs. Morrow, Helbing, McMurray, Hellin and Detterer. Committee of awards consists of Bessie Bennett, Emma Hodge, Art Institute, and Lena Macauley, Chicago Evening Post.

Community Club of Englewood.

"A rainy day is better than no day" thought a large number of the club ladies as they wended their way through the storm to the beautiful home of Mrs. Robinson, 503 West 61st Pl., on Tuesday last. They were certainly royally rewarded for their effort in the excellent program provided by the social committee.

Mrs. Lillian French Read sang in her own sweetly charming way, three groups of songs, with her son, Cyrus, as a very able accompanist. Mrs. Marie Summers, dramatist, an artist of rare talent, and new to many, in a wonderfully realistic and fascinating manner, gave several readings depicting the heroic, sad and happy sides of life; and as the "reward for work well done is more work," the club holds the thought of a future treat from Mrs. Summers.

Delicious refreshments were served, and all voted Mrs. Robinson a most gracious and hospitable entertainer.

The "everlasting knitters" were there with busy fingers, knitting for the boys, who would otherwise be cold, and one patriotic worker was hard at work on her twenty-sixth pair of soldier sox.

The club will meet again on November 13.

The Red Cross workers are still enthusiastic and faithful every Tuesday at their post at the Englewood Baptist church house, where they will gladly welcome you.

The seventh federal reserve district, which comprises parts of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin and all of Iowa, is shooting at a $700,000,000 target in this campaign. Only the united efforts of all the people, rich and poor, high and low, great and small, will enable the district to "ring the bell."

And remember, while pondering your answer to that question, that a Liberty bond pays 4 per cent interest and is as good as minted gold.

Keep Troubles to Yourself.

The fellow who is always telling a hard luck story doesn't have many friends. The world hasn't time to listen to your troubles.

The Englewood Sunday Evening Club.

It was a capacity audience that greeted Mr. Fred B. Smith last Sunday evening and listened intently to his timely and inspiring talk on "America's Greatest Sin." This was Mr. Smith's third appearance on the platform of the Sunday Evening club and he amply fulfilled the expectations of those who had heard him before.

We believe there will be an equally enthusiastic gathering next Sunday evening when Lieut. Robert Bowman of the American field service in France, who has just returned from 14 months on front-line work with the above organization, better known to us perhaps as the "American ambulance," brings to us the story of his experiences "over there." Lieutenant Bowman wears the uniform of France as this work has been carried on under the direction of that government, and he has been decorated with the Croix de Guerre with the gold star, the highest decoration that has as yet been awarded to a foreign noncombatant. The pictures with which he illustrates his story are unpublished and authentic fighting-line photographs—showing a phase of the war which is not so generally known as is the more spectacular side. Perhaps that is the greatest charm of his lecture, that it reveals to us a little of the silver lining of this terrible war cloud so soon to cast its shadow over our land. Lieutenant Bowman has given this lecture in various parts of the country, before public and private organizations, and it has received the highest praise. When he lectured at Orchestra hall last month, with seats selling at theatre prices, the house was filled, and the same story is told of all his other engagements.

Lieutenant Bowman is a native of Chicago and a graduate of Yale, of the class of 1911. When the Lusitania was sunk he was at Chattanooga on a large construction job. He decided at once that as soon as that contract was finished he would go and offer his services to the allies. He went to England expecting to enlist in the Royal Flying corps, but found that he would have to become a British subject and forfeit his American citizenship, which he was not willing to do. Being unable to go in that way, he went across to France and, after trying various methods of getting out to the front, he decided on the American field service, or the American ambulance. After about six weeks in Paris he went out with a mobile field hospital. That was at the beginning of the big French drive in the Champagne district in the fall of 1915. Soon after that he saw the bombardment of Dunkirk by the big 42-centimeter guns, and in February, 1916, was sent on front-line service in the Aisne valley with section one of the American ambulance. After two and a half months in the Aisne valley they were moved to the Somme valley and there they served in front-line work for about three months. During the first ten days of artillery preparation for the big Somme drive, that section was badly knocked up and drawn back to recuperate, so that he was at liberty and had the privilege of being an eye-witness of the great Somme attack. In fact, he was probably the only noncombatant who saw the men "go over the top" in the first charge of this great battle, which, merging with the battle of Arras and the battle of Messines, is now reaching its climax. From the Somme he was ordered to Verdun, where he served practically continuously all through the summer of 1916. During his first period of service there he was in action continuously for 24 days and ended up by driving for 32 hours in the gas during the great German gas attack which started a year ago July 28. On another occasion at Verdun, he served in various parts of the Fleury salient upon which the crown prince's attack was centering and which was costing the French approximately 4,000 men a week to maintain on a two-mile front.

The soloist next Sunday evening will be Mr. George Mayer of the United States navy. There will be the usual organ recital from 7:15 to 7:30 o'clock by Mr. George R. Kurtz, and the service will begin promptly at 7:30. You are all most cordially invited to meet with us in the auditorium of the Englewood Presbyterian church, corner of Yale Ave. and W. 64th street, and enjoy this splendid program.

Community Center at Lewis-Champlin School.

Beginning with Tuesday, October 30, the Lewis-Champlin school will be opened as a community center on Tuesday and Thursday evening of each week. This was done at the request of the Parent-Teacher association of the school, and the aim is to use the school for furnishing amusement, recreation and help to the community and for supplying a general meeting place.

On the opening night there will be a patriotic rally and general registration. The following kinds of work or amusement will be offered: Gymnastics, basketball, games, singing, dancing, dramatics, reading, cooking, manual training, civics, parliamentary law, and especially patriotic work of different kinds.

Other lines of activity may be undertaken if there is a sufficient demand for them.

Responsible persons or organizations may obtain the use of rooms in the school on these evenings. Applications for such use should be made as soon as possible.

All who are interested should be sure to come Tuesday evening, October 30, at 8 p. m. There will be music by the eighth grade chorus and by the Boys' Glee club; community singing, led by Mrs. Heath, supervisor of music for the Chicago schools; drills, and patriotic addresses.

Everybody is invited.

Our Paper Purely Local.

We are often compelled to refuse space for interesting items of news of a general character, but we must reserve our space for purely local matter, or at least matter that concerns our home people. We cover a large territory, from 55th St. to the south city limits and from State St. west to Marquette Pk., hence we have little space for lond-winded articles, no matter how important the subject or for items that may please certain people. We gladly give space to all local matter, personals or anything concerning our own home district or for the good of our people. All matter must be signed, not for publication, but that we may know the matter is genuine. We also ask that our writers be brief; we have no space to kill, and are compelled to condense all matter.

Englewood Woman's Club.

Morning Session With the Literature Department—In the Afternoon Mme. Julia Horta, From Belgium, to Speak —Milan Lusk, Violinist.

The smaller clubroom was filled to its capacity on Monday morning, October 22. Many were occupying seats in the foyer of the building for the sociology department held sway, having two splendid attractions in its program, which followed after reports were made by Mrs. George Kalk, Miss Orrill Clark, Mrs. W. J. Frisbie and Mrs. William S. Hefferen.

The latter urged the members to become registrars the week of November 5. Instruction in this patriotic service is given at 120 W. Adams St. The outcome of this work will show just how much each woman can do.

Mrs. C. G. Kindred is the worthy chairman of this department, this being her second year in the service. There is certainly a broad field for work and with her able helpers, who are serving on her committee, surely a great, good work will be accomplished this year.

The two attractions aforementioned were Mr. John D. Shoop, superintendent of schools, who spoke on "What the Board of Education Is Doing for the Foreigners," and Mr. A. T. Campbell, former director at Davis Square, now of Hamilton Park, who spoke on "Conditions Back of the Yards."

The former dealt with his subject in a most convincing manner.

Mr. Shoop told us that a five-minute ride from the heart of the city would take us into a field of curiosity, from Greece to Italy, thence into Russia and on to Bohemia. "The greatest success that can be achieved is the bringing of the mothers of this section together to stimulate the interest among them. This may be done by the clubs of our city, and especially this Englewood Woman's club."

I should judge that his reason for noting this particular club was because of its activities in the past and for the many very willing workers who are ever ready to aid when necessity calls.

"There are thirty-two evening schools in Chicago. All opportunity is given for any foreigner to make of himself a master of the English language," continued Mr. Shoop.

"Not from lack of interest but on account of the cessation of immigration the enrollment has dropped considerably. Last year 7,000 foreigners took advantage of these classes. Only 5,000 have been enrolled this year. Five thousand teachers were needed in 1916, only 2,500 are necessary at the present time. The Jones school is offering classes during the day to the foreigners. Some of the best, most patient and sympathetic teachers have been secured.

"The best way to influence the men to become English-speaking people is to work with their employers; second, to get the organizations to stimulate these men to desire to become acquainted with the English language; third, for the clubs to create an incentive in the homes of these foreigners to bring the mothers together and instruct them; fourth, through the schools, to get children to speak English at home."

Mr. Campbell, who has been identified for some time in the work at Davis Square, was most able to picture to us in a vivid manner scenes enacted "back of the yards" and the time allotted to him seemed all too short.

"The poorest of all the recreation parks in this city, with its ten acres, is Davis Square. Vegetation is poor owing to the atmosphere. The homes are not slums, but packed to the limit with very little privacy," said Mr. Campbell.

"Nine-tenths of the social activities takes place in the dance hall. Dancing is observed according to rule, laid out by the recreation committee. Morally the conditions "back of the yards" are not bad—when you think of the manner in which people live. Nearly all of the evil coming from this district is due to the saloon, of which there are many.

Mr. Thaddeus Sleszynski, now director of Davis Square, briefly gave an outline of his plans for the future—one of which was to have a woman's day each week, when instruction in knitting, sewing and English would be given to those desirous of the work.

At two o'clock the afternoon meeting was called to order by Mrs. R. Maynard Reed, first vice president, who presided in the absence of Mrs. Charles Clark, president, who was ill.

"Illinois," was sung by the audience, led by Mrs. Fitch, with Mrs. D. R. Kendall accompanist. As the Mondays go by we find we are familiar with a very few words of our patriotic songs, as each week brings to us a different one.

Announcements were made by the chairmen of the various committees, after the report of the secretary, Mrs. Frederick Nichols, was read.

Mrs. Ralph Holmes is calling for books for the army camps. A number are now on hand, but many more are needed.

Mrs. Rudolph Biester of 5417 Calumet Ave. will entertain the French Salon at her home next Tuesday afternoon.

A public-speaking class will be organized next Monday at ten o'clock in the clubroom. It is desirous that a number of ladies avail themselves of this opportunity.

A French class will also be held at the noon hour, beginning next Monday, for those caring to study that subject.

Mrs. Charles Leigh, the art chairman, introduced the violinist, Mr. Eric D. Sagerquist, and pianist, Mr. Pearce, who gave several musical numbers, after which Mme. Alla Ripley spoke on "Art and Economy in Dress," or as she termed it, "Harmony in Dress," illustrating at the close of her talk with gowns, coats and hats of the latest design, which were worn by members and junior members of the club.

Mrs. Martin Edinger was hostess.

Resolutions of sympathy, which had been drawn up by Mrs. Charles W. Blodgett and her committee, were read by her in appreciation of Mrs. Anna Nichols, director at Englewood house, and Mr. William Legler, late chief librarian, both of which passed away several weeks ago. These resolutions were approved by the club.

Next Monday evening, October 29, the literature department and friends will hear Ella J. Abeel on "Rabindramath Lagore, Poet of Morality," instead of Eunice Tietjens, who has recently departed for Paris, France. Woman's War Service day will be observed in the afternoon, Mme. Julia Horta of Belgium will speak and Milan Lusk, violinist, will be heard, besides giving a description of his experience in the trenches.

Mrs. John Galley Campbell will be the hostess of the afternoon.

I Spend Another Week at the State Capital.

Probably due to the excitement of the war, and a strike or two being in progress, I was allowed to spend another week at Springfield, and it was very enjoyable. We had fine weather, dry and crisp with just enough tang of autumn to exhilarate one. The country roads are good for driving, except in the lowlands where the drainage is bad, and some excellent specimens of Illinois mud are found; but the dry mud roads beat the "hard" roads at this season of the year. A great amount of road building is in progress and we are promised a fine cement drive from Chicago to Springfield, a trifle over 200 miles, within three years.

There is more corn standing in Illinois now than would feed all of Europe. The crop is immense and the husky granger is gathering in the shekels with both hands, and each foot busy making change. The criticism of the farmers' patriotism is only partly deserved. Of course they are making all they can out of the high markets, and some are holding onto their grain, but they are also sending their sons to war and buying bonds liberally. This is due to the fact that most of the sons are drafted and are compelled to go, and the bonds are a good investment, especially as they are tax free, and if there is anything a farmer likes it is to escape paying taxes. Saturday afternoon when the farmer visits town he no longer hitches Dobbin to the grocery rail fence, but drives up with his bright new flivver and cusses the price of gasoline as enthusiastically as the city slicker. I saw many solicited to buy bonds, but few bought. The old idea that they are the abused ones of the earth still possesses them, and they think the war is all right for prices, but the city man should fight it, and leave the farmer to gather his toll, and Springfield is the Mecca of the farmer.

Governor Lowden has made great changes in the capitol, and doubtless the new system of abolishing useless and overlapping departments has saved the state hundreds of thousands of dollars. While the politicians largely criticize his administration, all must admit he has done things since he came here, and today is keeping more irons in the fire without burning them, than any man in the land. He settled the coal miners' strike, and brought order out of chaos in the negro riot towns along the river, and made no fuss about it. So it is every day of his administration, he does some good thing, and carries no brass band to herald his coming or his going. He is a typical American war governor, cool and not liable to hysterics, but patriotic to the core, and jealous of the honor and standing of his state. Whatever President Wilson expects of Illinois will be done, and no peanut politics or grafting spoilsmen will influence our governor an iota. He is the right man for the right place, and I am strong for Governor Lowden at every stage. The pedestal for the new Lincoln monument is finished in front of the capitol grounds. One of Douglas will be erected at the right and an entire new system or scheme of buildings is being planned for all of the administration property. The new building known as the Illinois Centennial will be built next year and the ground is being cleared for it. More room is badly needed for the different departments as several are now crowded into private buildings off the statehouse grounds, and during the vacation of the senate and the house, all of their committee rooms are utilized for offices that must vacate them as soon as the legislature convenes.

Just a few things I noticed here are: An undertaker advertises as a "Mortician;" the auto drivers are more reckless than any place on earth; pawn brokers offer for sale in their windows all sorts of murderous weapons from "billies" to automatic revolvers; the closed saloons still keep up their signs hoping to vote the town wet two years hence; any one coming from any other part of the state to fill an office or position is looked upon as an interloper by Springfield people—they feel entitled to all the jobs elective or appointive. Rents are lower taxes lower, wages lower and prices higher than any town in the state. I'm going home.

George Dow Is Married to Miss McShane Last Evening.

Mr. George B. Dow of 6449 Harvard Ave. was married last evening, Thursday, October 25, to Miss Frances R. McShane of 6023 Vernon Ave. The ceremony was private and witnessed only by the intimate friends and relatives of the bride and groom. After a brief wedding trip, spent "somewhere in America," the happy couple will be at home in the Tudor building, 66th St. and Yale Ave., where they have fitted up handsome apartments.

Mr. Dow has been in the piano business on 63d St. for about twelve years and is one of our most popular and successful business men. The bride has been his assistant for some years, and their lives which have been so pleasantly linked together commercially, will we trust be as pleasantly connected matrimonially. The writer after a long, and somewhat intimate acquaintance with both bride and groom, may honestly and earnestly congratulate both—Mr. Dow, on winning so winsome a bride, and Mrs. Dow on securing so desirable a helpmate. We hope they may live long and happy lives, and better still, that it may all be spent in the good old town of Englewood.

Mrs. George B. Dow.
